Whereas the Lord Chancellor, Lord Treasurer, and Lord

the Eight and twentieth year

And whereas His Majesty was graciously pleased, in consideration of the great losses the Vintners in the City of London sustained by the late dreadful Fire, to permit and indulge the selling their Wines by retail as reasonably as they could afford them; which Indulgence His Majesty intends shall be continued until the Four and twentieth day of June next, and no longer.

It was this day Ordered, And His Majesty doth hereby Declare his Royal Will and

and Pleasure to be, That from the said Four and twentieth day of June next, during the then remainder of this present year to be accounted as aforesaid, all the said several sorts of Wines shall be sold in gros, and by retail, according to the Rates and Prices in the said Proclamation expressed, viz. Canary Wines, Allegant, and Muscadels in gros at Twenty four pounds the Pipe or Butt, and Nine pence the Pint by retail; Sacks and Malagaes in gros at Twenty two pounds the Butt, and Eight pence the Pint by retail; French Wines in gros at Twenty three pounds the Tun, and Eight pence the Quart by retail; and Rhenish Wine in gros at Six pounds the Aune, and Twelve pence the Quart by retail; and according to these proportions for greater or lesser quantities, either in gros or by retail, and not at greater Rates, saving for Land-carriage, according to provision made in the said Proclamation in that behalf. And His Majesty doth hereby straitly Charge and Command all Merchants, Vintners, Wine-Coopers, and others whom it may concern, That none of them presume after the time aforesaid, to sell any of the said Wines in gros or by retail, at higher Rates, then by this Order, and the said former Proclamation are appointed, under the Penalties and Forfeitures which by the Laws and Statutes of this Realm can be inflicted upon such Offenders, and the danger of being prosecuted by Informations and otherwise, according to the severity of Law and Justice; The Order of the Nine and twentieth of January last, or any thing therein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

And it was further Ordered, That this Order be sent to the Master and Wardens of the Company of Wintners, and likewise to the Master and Wardens of the Company of Coopers of London, who are required to intimate the same unto all persons of their respective Societies and Trades; and they, and all others, are required to take notice hereof, and yield due obedience hereunto accordingly, as they will answer the contrary at their perils.
